Sentence

There is no one who has left house or brothers or sisters or mother or father or children or fields, for Jesus' sake, who will not receive a hundredfold now in this age, with persecutions, and in the age to come eternal life.

Mark 10.29-30

Prayer of the day

Merciful God, in your Son you call not the righteous but sinners to repentance:

draw us away from the easy road that leads to destruction, and guide us into paths that lead to life abundant, that in seeking your truth, and obeying your will, we may know the joy of being a disciple of Jesus our Saviour; who lives and reigns with you and the Holy Spirit, one God, now and for ever. Amen.

Psalm 90.12-17

- 12 Teach us so to number our days:
that we may apply our hearts to wisdom.
- 13 Relent, O Lord; how long will you be angry?:
take pity on your servants.
- 14 O satisfy us early with your mercy:
that all our days we may rejoice and sing.
- 15 Give us joy for all the days you have afflicted us:
for the years we have suffered adversity.
- 16 Show your servants your work:
and let their children see your glory.
- 17 May the gracious favour of the Lord our God be upon us:
prosper the work of our hands, O prosper the work of our hands!

From the Acting Rector

Psalm 90 opens Book IV of the Psalter and responds to the heart rending cry of Psalm 89: We have lost everything in the exile, the land the temple, the monarchy, but most of all we have lost you. "How long, O Lord? Will you hide yourself forever?" (89.46). The poet responds, "Lord, you have been our dwelling place in all generations (90.1). That is the underlying theme of this psalm. The poet knows that we are mortal and that we pass through difficult times and we find it hard to make any sense of it all. Our lives are short and frail and we wonder what they are about. We commit sin against God, personal and public, of commission and omission (as in Amos) and bring down on our heads God's displeasure. But still you are our dwelling place.

The poet concludes the psalm with a prayer that we might use every day (12-17). It is a prayer for wisdom, which we gain by paying attention to our daily lives and not letting them slip by as though they do not matter (12). We need to come under God's guidance daily; not weekly, not monthly, not annually.

Then the poet prays for God's compassionate and loving presence which will satisfy us with the love that we need and allow the joy to flow that is meant to characterize human life under God (13-14). When that happens we can begin to make sense of life; of its afflictions and joys, experiencing God's powerful work in the world and finally to make sense of work and human labour, trusting that it counts for something (15-17).

New Rector: Important news about next steps

Parish Consultation – Sunday 1 November, 11.30am

On Wednesday, 30 September, our Parish Clergy Appointment Board (CAB) members Denise, Ian and Chris had an initial meeting with Bishop Matt Brain. Bishop Matt has been asked by Bishop Stuart to chair the selection process for the new rector for St Philip's. The meeting mainly canvassed general process matters, as the CAB has not yet been formally appointed. The next step in the process is that Bishop Matt needs to conduct a formal Parish Consultation. This will assist him to get a better understanding of the Parish and its priorities in what we are looking for in Rector. This will build on the Parish Profile that we have already prepared and consulted on. Bishop Matt's first available Sunday is 1 November, so we are proposing to hold a meeting of the Parish after the 10 am service. It is anticipated that this meeting will last no longer than one hour. This will not only be an opportunity for everyone to contribute your thoughts on priorities, but it will also be an important opportunity for Bishop Matt, who has only been newly appointed, to get to know us and our priorities and style. We strongly urge you to put this date in your diaries and attend if at all possible.

Denise Manley, Ian Cousins, Chris Cheah.
