Psalm: 107.1-7, 33-37

- 1 O give thanks to the Lord, for he is good:
for his loving mercy is for ever.
- 2 Let the Lord's redeemed say so:
whom he has redeemed from the hand of the enemy,
- 3 And gathered in from every land, from the east and from the west:
from the north and from the south.
- 4 Some went astray in the wilderness and in the desert:
and found no path to an inhabited city;
- 5 They were hungry and thirsty:
and their heart fainted within them.
- 6 Then they cried to the Lord in their distress:
and he took them out of their trouble.
- 7 He led them by the right path:
till they came to an inhabited city.
- 33 He turns the rivers into desert:
and springs of water into thirsty ground.
- 34 He makes of a fruitful land a salty waste:
because its inhabitants are evil.
- 35 He turns the wilderness into a pool of water:
and parched ground into flowing springs.
- 36 And there he settles the hungry:
and they build a city to live in.
- 37 They sow fields and plant vineyards:
which give them fruitful harvest.

From the Rector

Dear Friends,

November has traditionally been a month of remembrance. We began the month with a celebration of All Saints, when we recalled the lives of the giants of our faith. We also remembered on All Souls day those dear to us and all those who have no one to remember them. I am fond of the quoting from the very end of the novel Middlemarch by George Eliot. Speaking of the heroine Dorothea she writes (George Eliot was a woman) ....for the growing good of the world is partly dependant on unhistoric acts; and that things are not so ill with you and me as they might have been, is half owing to the number who lived faithfully a hidden life, and rest in unvisited tombs. We need to be wary creating too great a distance between the 'saints' and those ordinary folk who have led heroic, faithful but largely unrecorded lives.

On Friday at 10.30am at Bill MacKenzie Gardens in Page I shall speak at their annual Remembrance Day commemoration. It is a poignant time as we recall the 100th anniversary of the events of the Great War, this week past particularly the charge at Beersheba and the extraordinary heroism of those involved in that action.

But whilst we quite rightly honour those who have died in the defence of the nation, we must remember those have died in warfare, violence and terror who are largely unremembered. In Westminster Abbey there is memorial to the innocent victims of oppression violence and war. The memorial takes the form of a circle with the word 'Remember' prominent in the centre and around the edge the words: "Is it nothing to you, all you who pass by", a quote from the Book of Lamentations.

At the unveiling of the memorial the then Dean of Westminster, Michael Mayne said: I am your brother your sister. Let me not stand forsaken and forgotten. Remember me. And that cry then takes the form of a question, a question which should quicken our compassion, the question then encircles our stone, is it nothing to you, all you who pass by.

So we enter the month of remembrance, and consider the very act of remembering. Not just as something passive, but committing ourselves to work to remember to ensure that we do not repeat the atrocities of the past. But also to commit ourselves to hold in our prayers those bereaved, damaged, traumatised and indeed those who are largely forgotten that God indeed may remember them, transfigure them, into God's own likeness.

Blessings, Martin

A Note from Anne Mahony

With heartfelt thanks for the prayers and support given to Sam and myself over the past few months. It has upheld us through the tough times. Anne and Sam.

The Thursday morning congregation gathered as usual this past week and found they had been blessed with a new altar and altar cloth. John Munro has created a beautiful altar for us to use in the Lamerton Centre, which has been made exclusively of recycled timber and Roger Sharp brought us back from Cyprus a hand made altar cloth which compliments the new altar perfectly. We thank both John and Roger for their time and generosity, a wonderful addition to the worshipping life at St Philip's. Martin.
